"Kindred," in Proceedings of the Motion Design Education Conference, Massey University (Wellington, New Zealand, 2019)

This paper presents my five-minute video project "Kindred," an exploration of tolerance and our interconnectedness as a human race. The video juxtaposes metro train experiences in various cultures across the globe. I filmed for this project in six cities—NYC, Cairo, Paris, Barcelona, Mumbai, and Athens—and presented it at the MODE 2019 Conference at Massey University. The session was organized by Andre Murnieks, a faculty researcher, and Heather Shaw, Associate Professor at Lesley University. My paper was selected through a blind peer-review process; out of 51 submissions, only 66% were selected for presentation and publication.

06/08/17

"Introduction of Historical References in a Motion Graphics Class," in Proceedings of the Motion Design Education Conference, The Ohio State University (Columbus, Ohio, 2017)

This pedagogical paper presents my use of historical themes, like memento mori, to enrich and enliven software-focused courses. This paper was presented at the MODE 2017 Conference in a session organized by Andre Murnieks, a faculty researcher at Massey University, and Rebecca Tegtmeier, an Associate Professor at Michigan State University. The paper was selected through a blind peer-review process; out of 36 submission, only 67% were selected for presentation and publication.
